The arc to Tokyo

- India and Japan are infusing bilateral ties with a sharper geopolitical agenda
- Japan PM visit -> Annual summits between two countries -> Set strategic ties on a fast track
- Ahmedabad-Mumbai bullet train project is as much about politics as it is about infrastructure:
- Japan has been keen to export its high-speed train technology
- Joint statement and comments by the two Prime Ministers in Gandhinagar also sent out a similar message that will be read closely in China on several counts.
- North Korea was a “joint” challenge -> Pyongyang’s -> Beijing
- Calling for zero tolerance on terrorism referenced China’s veto on the Jaish-e-Mohammad
- Both the title of the joint statement, “Toward a free, open and prosperous Indo-Pacific”, and countering China’s influence in the South China Sea, Indian Ocean, and investments in South Asia and Africa.
Coming into force of the India-Japan nuclear deal and more military and maritime exercises
India has also extended to Japan—which is to assist in infrastructure development in the Northeast
It is clear that the Modi government has set India-Japan ties on an will be a major factor in its dealings with the rest of the world, especially China, at a time when the U.S. is perceived to be retreating from the region.
While Japan is India’s largest donor and the third largest provider of FDI, bilateral trade has steadily declined since 2013, and is down to $13.61 billion in 2016-17 from $14.51 billion the year before.
The contrast with India-China trade, at $71 billion a year, and Japan-China trade, at $279 billion
It is time to issues in order to facilitate closer ties between India and Japan
