Sardar Sarovar Dam

It took 56 years since the launch of the project by Jawaharlal Nehru for the completion of the behemoth project, with inter-State disputes and environmental and rehabilitation issues posing hurdles.

Record feat: The second biggest concrete gravity dam by volume in the world after the Grand Coulee Dam in the U.S., and the biggest in terms of the volume of concrete used. It’s the third highest concrete dam in India.

Down the years

April 5, 1961: Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru lays foundation stone

1964: A.N. Khosla panel formed to resolve dispute between Gujarat and Madhya Pradesh over sharing of the water and electricity

1969: Madhya Pradesh government differs with committee report; hence, the Narmada Water Dispute Tribunal is formed

1979: Tribunal gives final award in December

1980: Work begins, but protests by the Narmada Bachao Andolan against massive displacement of people and environmental destruction hold up work

1996: Supreme Court stays the project, further delaying the work

2000: Supreme Court allows work to resume, subject to completion of the rehabilitation process

2006: Narendra Modi, as Chief Minister of Gujarat, sits on a 51-hour fast in 2006 as the UPA government refuses to give permission to raise the height of the dam, citing incomplete rehabilitation work

2014: In just 17 days after becoming Prime Minister, Modi’s government gives the final permission to raise the height of the dam to 138 metres and install the gates.

Apex body demanded for Eastern Ghats

To guide conservation efforts in the entire region

With anthropogenic pressure adversely impacting the ecologically sensitive Eastern Ghats, environmentalists have demanded constitution of an apex body to guide conservation efforts in the entire region.

The 1,700-km-long Eastern Ghat spread across Odisha, Andhra Pradesh, Telangana, Tamil Nadu and Karnataka on the east coast of India is an important physiographic unit with immense bio-geographic, environmental, socio-economic, cultural and spiritual significance.

Large areas of the Eastern Ghats falling in Odisha have been witnessing rampant mining activities.

Congress president Sonia Gandhi has written to Prime Minister Narendra Modi, urging him to get the longpending Women’s Reservation Bill passed in the Lok Sabha, taking advantage of the majority the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) enjoys in the House.

This comes at a time when there is speculation that Prime Minister Narendra Modi is planning to bring the Bill, possibly in a changed format, to try and woo the women’s constituency.

UPA succeeded in getting the Bill passed in the Rajya Sabha on March 9, 2010.
No role for India in Afghanistan: Abbasi

Improvement in bilateral ties possible only if the core issue of Kashmir is resolved, says Pakistani Prime Minister.

There is no role for India in Afghanistan and Islamabad’s ties with New Delhi could improve only if the “core issue” of Kashmir is resolved first, Pakistan Prime Minister Shahid Khaqan Abbasi has said.

Mr. Abbasi’s remarks during an interaction at the Council on Foreign Relations (CFR) put Pakistan at odds with the new U.S. strategy for South Asia announced last month by President Donald Trump.
